

Fig. 1 Prior art

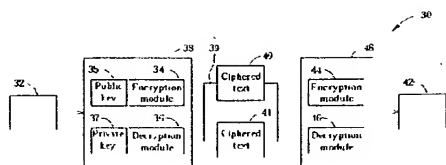

Fig. 2 Prior art

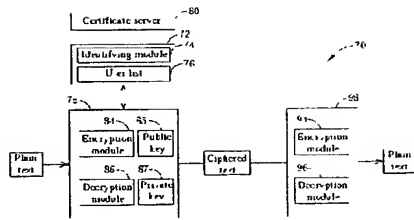

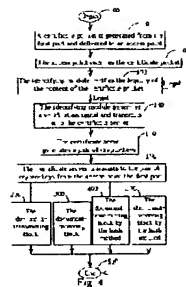

Fig. 3

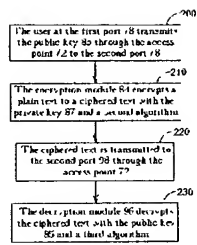

Fig. 5

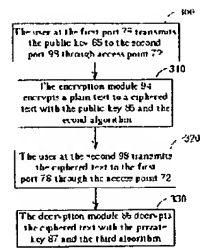

Fig 6

The user will first use the find command (the golden line) to search for the number 12 in the second and fifth positions. $\text{find } 12 \text{ in the second and fifth positions}$

The user will then use the replace command to replace the value of the first column with the value of the second column. $\text{replace the first column with the value of the second column}$

The user will then use the sort command to sort the data by the first column. $\text{sort the data by the first column}$

The user will then use the select command to select the first column. $\text{select the first column}$

The user will then use the write command to write the data to a file. $\text{write the data to a file}$

The user will then use the quit command to quit the program. quit the program

CONCLUDE the second value and the first value of the first column and the first value of the second column.

Fig 1

